

New Song and Video Debut From Kellian and Company

"Echoes of Your Heart"

(Kailua Kona)

Internationally acclaimed musical artists Kellian and Company have released a new song and music video titled "Echoes of Your Heart."

The enigmatic song tells a story of departure, loneliness, and wandering, against a surreal backdrop with Arab, Spanish, Irish, Slavic, and Hindi overtones. The opening lyrics establish a mood of isolation, contemplation, and wonder: "I do not seek the answer to questions no one asks, I do not long for reason or the anguish that it masks. I do not know your heart or the passions it allows, I cannot know the mysteries you wear upon your brow." The orchestral music swirls with intensity as Kellian asks: "Can you hear me scream as you depart?"

"Echoes of Your Heart" was written and composed by bestselling author and songwriter Dennis Lee Foster, who also produced and directed the music video. Dennis is the author of 68 published books, including two bestsellers, and has directed 35 music videos and short feature films.

The group's breakthrough hit "Do You Know What It's Like to Be Lonely" has been streamed by more than 1.3 million listeners and aired on FM radio stations across the U.S. Their first music video, "Baby's Riding on a Falling Star," was an official selection of the Made in Hawaii Film Festival in 2019. Their stirring song, "She Wanted It To Be Different," was inspired by the story of a homeless woman who died in a drainage ditch beneath a busy intersection.

"Echoes of Your Heart" is available from all music stores and services. The video can be viewed for free on Kellianco.com and Youtube.
